3	(解答例) The prices of imported food and domestic products have been rising. If we could produce more food in our own country rather than importing from foreign countries, we might control the prices. However, the prices of imported food influence those of the food produced in our own country. In order to solve the problem, we should create a way to increase the amount of local food. For example, we could build more food factories or use empty fields to grow more local food.
